

ABSTRACT

Miniaturization of an electronic device including a battery storing container and extending the battery operation time are realized. An electronic device has a battery storing container having an opening for placing a battery in and out, a recording medium storing part for storing a recording medium detachably and a plurality of circuit boards constituting predetermined circuits, wherein the recording medium storing part and the plurality of circuit boards are placed so as to surround the outside of the battery storing container except at its opening.